COURTS CONVENE:

Circuit Court—First Monday in February, June and October.
Chancery Court—First Tuesday after fourth Monday in February and first Tuesday after first Monday in August.

Wednesday, July 12, 1916.

In this issue appears the hoped for article touching the every day characters of Roosevelt and Hughes. Whether or not you like either of the men or agree with the writer, you will find it worth while to read the article for it is written by a New Yorker who is personally acquainted with both men and for that reason writes interestingly.

Louis J. Scholl, who was connected with the Rockwood Times for over twenty-five years, has bought the controlling interest in the Dayton Herald and has taken charge.

Mr. Scholl is a capable newspaper man and Dayton is to be congratulated in securing so capable a man to direct the destinies of the Herald, which is the oldest paper in the county. We bespeak for Editor Scholl a good business and an opportunity to very materially advance the well being of Dayton and Rhea county and we feel sure he will prove equal to the task and opportunity before him.

The Harriman Record has just installed a new Mergenthaler Linotype for putting up the reading matter and advertisements of that interesting and progressive paper.

Ever since Editor Featherly purchased the old Advance, some fifteen years ago, the Record has stood in the front rank of weekly papers of the state and has had few equals. This last move is in keeping with the broad progressive ideas that always actuate Editor Featherly and insure his being found in the front line and most of the time leading.

While the expense is an item of no small moment Editor Featherly has had so many years experience in the newspaper field and is recognized as being so capable in his field that very few, if any, will expect anything other than a pronounced success to follow this new move in the field of journalism.

The Chronicle extends most hearty congratulations and wishes for the Record that full measure of prosperity that is justly due such splendid push and enterprise.

MR. ROOSEVELT IN THESE TIMES

Many persons have understood Mr. Roosevelt's position in recent months, and some have not. He has intensely advocated certain views, and has unsparingly criticized the Administration and the Democratic Congress.

He has done this as a public leader, but not as a self-seeker. If he had been maneuvering for a nomination, he could have secured it. His desire was to promote certain public ends. He favored the union or cooperation of parties because he sought results. He would have been willing to lead as a candidate only if his services were clearly desired. His spirit and his conduct have been wholly patriotic and unselfish.

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months."

I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.

his attacks upon the Wilson administration, he has been sincere; and his motives have not been personal. Through the preliminary campaign he declared repeatedly that he was neither for nor against any candidate. That he will strongly support Mr. Hughes is the general understanding.—"From 'The Progress of the World,' in the American Review of Reviews.

MISS MABEL JARRETT A BRIDE

Married Bank Cashier June 29, Umatilla, Florida; Shower Given.

Miss Mabel Jarrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Jarrett, Umatilla, Florida, was married Thursday, June 29, to Mr. Joe Young, cashier of Mount Dora bank.

In the afternoon of the wedding day a miscellaneous shower was given Miss Jarrett by the young ladies of the Methodist church. The rooms were decorated with pink and green and Miss Jarrett was given the end of a pink ribbon and told to follow it, which she did after untying many knots and found at the end of the ribbon a large basket overflowing with many beautiful and useful gifts.

Miss Jarrett has many friends here who will join in wishing her unbounded happiness and a long wedded life.

DANGER FROM WHITE WOLVES

No Greater Peril Can Be Encountered by Those Who Have to Travel in the Far North.

Writing of his recent adventures in the Arctic in Harper's Magazine, Donald B. Macmillan tells of a dramatic meeting of his sledge team with a pack of white wolves.

"I thought we had better move while we could, so I ordered the men to pack up their sledges and drive over to the battlefield. After going a short distance, a yell from Pee-ah-wah-to turned our attention toward the south. Could we believe our eyes! It was like a picture from one of the old books on travel in Siberia. Twelve white wolves were leaping over the snow directly at us. Fiction would have us now fighting for our lives, knives between teeth and rifles constantly going. On the contrary, we prayed that they would not stop, but keep coming on. Undoubtedly they would have done so had we been able to control our dogs, who were now wild with excitement, whining, yelping and straining on the traces. We houted and threatened and lashed with the whip, at the same time holding back with all our strength on the up-standers of the sledge. The leader of the band stopped, surveyed us critically for an instant and wheeled, followed by the others. By the time that we could tear the covers from the rifles they were out of range.

"I have no compunction whatever in shooting at these sneaking cowards of the animal world. Axel Helberg land is infested with them, their tracks being found intermingling with those of the muskox and white caribou. A mother and her young are surrounded, worried to death and torn into pieces. During Sverdrup's expedition the wolves came into camp, attacked and killed some of the dogs and later, on the trail, even attacked one of the men who had no other weapon to defend himself with than a ski. No animal in the North is so enduring, none has such a wide range and none an easier existence, their food being muskoxen, caribou, Arctic hare, lemmings and possibly foxes. There is also every evidence to believe that wolves prey upon seals along the ice foot."

POINTS OUT NEW OCCUPATION

Expert of Department of Agriculture Urges the Cultivation of Edible Snails.

Snail culture apparently has not yet made a beginning in this country, the few snails found on the market here being brought over from Europe alive in barrels and casks and sold by fish dealers in our large cities. Writing in the last Yearbook of the department of agriculture, Mr. E. W. Rust suggests that the opportunities for snail-growing are really much better in the United States than in Europe. While in the old world the snail grower generally has but a small piece of land on which the snails must be confined by a fence of special design, and where they must be regularly fed, in this country there is an abundance of waste land where the creatures might be successfully raised without attention, and as they do not wander far, they would not need to be confined. Mr. Rust states that the Mississippi valley offers ideal conditions for snail culture. There is no reason why snails should not be used to some extent as a substitute for oysters, which they resemble in flavor. Their feeding habits do not, as in the case of oysters, involve the possible danger of infection with typhoid and other diseases.—Scientific American.

Lumber to Travel 10,000 Miles.

A cargo of Douglas fir to be used in building docks at Port Nelson on Hudson bay will travel nearly 10,000 miles on shipboard before it reaches its destination at the end of a voyage which has already begun with the vessel's departure from British Columbia. Although, "as the crow flies," the forests that produced this lumber are only 1,400 miles from the Hudson bay port to which it has been shipped, transportation by way of the Panama canal, through which it is being sent, means a trip which has been estimated at 9,800 miles, or seven times the actual distance between Vancouver and Port Nelson. Consul Julius D. Dreher, at Toronto, Canada, who reports on this matter, states that a consignment of British Columbia timber is on the way to the Polson Iron works at Toronto, by way of the Panama canal, to be made into masts for a dredge being built for use at Port Nelson.

Big-Eared Holy Man.

Major General Hiraoka, who has just come back to Japan from the Island of Formosa, declares that the late revolt had a curious origin.

It appears that a rumor gained circulation among the aborigines that in the mountains had appeared a sage so holy that his ears hung down to his shoulders, and so wise that he was even better fitted to be the ruler over the aborigines than Baron Goto. A local prophet assured the natives that this mysterious personage was the heaven-ordained emperor of Formosa, and that if they did not rise at once to do battle for his cause they would regret it all their lives.

They rose, fully expecting that Big Ears would come to their assistance, but were disappointed.

London Rentals Highest in World.

Fifty years ago London was one of the lowest rented of the great capitals of the world. Nowadays it is one of the highest. For shops Bond street is the dearest thoroughfare in the world. Broadway in New York comes next, and a limited radius near the Place de l'Opera in Paris ranks third. A small shop in Bond street readily rents for from $6,000 to $7,500 a year. This includes the shop and basement, but not any other part of the premises. The shops in Regent street cost even more, but then they are larger, thus making the rent to the square foot work out less.

Scarcity Becoming Felt.

Prior to this year all the paris green sold in this country was produced early in January and February. No manufacturing operations of any kind have been undertaken since, as manufacturers have been unable to secure sufficient quantities of blue vitriol, or sulphate of copper, as well as white arsenic, for its manufacture. Where a manufacturer was accustomed to buy upward of 200,000 pounds of blue vitriol a few months ago as low as 3@4 cents a pound, he is today paying 16@17 cents a pound, and is unable to secure as much as 10,000 or 15,000 pounds with any degree of certainty.

Catless World in 1920?

With the slogan "Song birds forever and a catless world in 1920," R. Sayre, one of the largest individual farm-owners in North Dakota, has arrived from Chicago to look after his interests, which surround Devil's Lake, says a Devil's Lake (N. D.) dispatch.

Sayre's campaign against tabby has advanced so far that he is offering prizes to persons killing the most cats. In a leaflet issued by the enemy of the cat the household pet is pictured as the most vicious, disease-carrying, germ-ridden animal in the world.

Truth Established.

Samuel Joyner, living near Sandfield village in the Berkshires, saw a bear crossing a snow-covered swamp. When he related the incident the villagers doubted him. Next morning he drove to the swamp, cut out blocks of snow bearing bruin's footprints and, driving back to the village, placed the bear's tracks on exhibition.

Robin Hood Tradition.

The part of the English coast which recently suffered from German bombardment was connected with Robin Hood. Tradition says that from Whitney towers he and Little John used to shoot at long range with their English bows, and a bay a little south of this town bears to this day the name of Robin Hood's bay. This would seem to bear out the belief of Louis Rhead, author and illustrator of "Bold Robin Hood," that Robin Hood was an actual living personage and that his words and deeds continue to be a familiar part of the Anglo-Saxon heritage.

Lead Pencil Industry.

The English lead pencil industry, which is receiving a notable impetus through the war, dates back to the early half of the eighteenth century, when plumbago—which hitherto had served mainly for the manufacture of shot and crucibles—was first used for writing purposes. All the black lead used in pencil making then came from Seathwaite, which enjoys the double distinction of being the rainiest village in the British Isles, and of being the only place in the world where pure plumbago may be found. This mine yielded a huge fortune to the Bankes family, who owned it, the output in 1813 amounting to 31 tons of pure plumbago, which realized $525,000. Twenty years later foreign graphite began to take the place of plumbago in pencil making and in 1850 the Seathwaite mine was closed down.

Birds Invade Helgoland.

Helgoland is now experiencing an immense aerial invasion. In early autumn the island is one of the rest places of the birds migrating from the North, and night after night they come in countless armies. In times of peace the islanders turn the invasion to profit, stirring abroad all night with lanterns and nets, trapping the weak and weary birds that snatch a few minutes' rest. One observer records having known 15,000 larks alone trapped in a single night, of which number a lighthouseman caught 300 by fixing a wire net outside the great lantern.
